

Eva Horvati

Director of International Education and Development Centre

Expert in HE internationalization and international project management

Education:

Master's in Philosophy and History

PhD Studies started in Socio-Linguistics

Career:

1993-ongoing, teaching experience:

Kodolanyi Janos University, lecturer

Courses taught:

British and American History

British and American Civilization

International Comparative Studies

Multicultural Communication

Intercultural Management

International Strategies in Higher Education

Etiquette and Protocol

2005-ongoing

Contribution to the internationalization of KJU:

Development of KJU International Strategy

Management of the institutional international partnerships

Representation of KJU in internationalization conferences and summits

Coordination of the Erasmus mobility programs

2010-ongoing

Coordination of international projects

Coordination of international student recruitment and admissions

Participation in the institutional international curriculum development

Organization of annual KJU-International Weeks

Professional Memberships:

EAIE

Hungarian Rectors' Conference-International Committee

KJU Senate

Courses:

Currently tutoring Intercultural/Multicultural Communication and Intercultural Management courses

Social:

Team work: participating in several projects as member or manager of the project teams

Mediating skills: coordinating different units within the university in several project programmes

Communication skills: organization of internal and external communication of institutional international affairs

Spoken Languages:

English (C2)

Romanian (C2)

Intercultural skills: cooperation with over 250 international institutional partners, and organization of study and extracurricular activities for international students and faculty

Awards:

2011 Plaque for the Hungarian Higher Education